ELECTION SUMMARY

Premier Pat Duncan announced on October 4, 2002 that she was calling a general election to take place on November 4, 2002. The Chief Electoral Officer, Patrick L. Michael, issued the writs of election to the returning officers on October 4, 2002. Eighteen members were declared elected on November 11, 2002.

The 2001 five-member electoral district boundaries commission, chaired by retired Supreme Court Judge H.C.B. Maddison, recommended an additional electoral district in its report which was tabled in the Yukon Legislative Assembly on April 4, 2002. The Electoral District Boundaries Act, 2002, containing 18 electoral districts for Yukon, was introduced in the Legislature on April 11. It was given assent on May 30, 2002. The new electoral districts came into force on October 2, the date of dissolution of the 30th Legislative Assembly.

There were 16,181 electors on the preliminary lists after enumeration. On October 22 and 23, 1,536 electors were added to the lists at revision. Special revision took place at the returning offices on November 1 and 366 electors appeared in person to have their names added. The official lists of electors contained 18,067 names.

Nomination day was Tuesday, October 15, 2002. Nominations usually close on a Monday. As required by the Elections Act, however, if the Monday is a holiday, nomination day is the following day. October 14 was Thanksgiving Day. Sixty candidates filed nomination papers. The three registered political parties each endorsed a candidate in 18 electoral districts. Six independent candidates also filed nomination papers.

On Monday, November 4, 2002, 12,004 electors voted in person. At the advance polls on October 27 and 28, 1,326 people voted. In addition, 786 electors voted by proxy and special ballot and, in five electoral districts, by mail-in ballot.

There were no judicial recounts at this general election.

Fifty-five candidates were entitled to refunds of their nomination deposits pursuant to subsection 117(2) of the Act.
